That vessels of great draft should have free access to the Mississippi river from the gulf is a matter of importance to every commercial city on the river banks. It is, therefore, gratifying to know that, beside the jetties, the Barataria canal company are taking measures to create another entrance from the ocean. Complete success on their part will be a valuable addition to our means for extending commerce. While the canal is geting doubts to the contrary, a demonstrated success, as the exit and entrance of large

Its least width was two hundred and ten feet. A practicable channel of twenty-one feet was found. The interruption to navigation for a vessel drawing twenty two feet was four hundred and thirty feet in length. Wherever found, that is with the exception of the interruption above noted, the twenty-two-toot channel was at least one hundred and sixty feet wide. The space lacking a twenty-two-foot channel of the full width of two hundred feet is about eight hundred and fifty feet in length. At low tide October 31st these depths were lessened eight-tenths of a foot, and at high tide five-tenths of a foot. On October 24th a wide channel of twenty-two and one-half feet deep was found at the head of South Pass. I certify that the above is a correct statement taken from the results of my latest survey,

About the first of the year 1870 a war was commenced on the original secessionsists in the south, but southern apostates. The juvepile politicians feared that they might interfere with their aspirations, and after meeting in grave conclaves, they issued bulls of exunclean. They were told that they precipitated the country in an unfortunate war, and, having "failed"-that was the word, and the to be unceremoniously kicked into the limbo which they had prepared for decayed politicians. But it seems that programme "failed." The southern people were unwilling to advertise themselves to the world as silly fools, to be dragged into an unjust war at the command of a few men. They said that the southern States had been carried out of the Union by their own votes, and that all were alike responsible for the war. The result is Governor Isham G. Harris is in the senate of the United States; L. Q. C. Lamar is there, too. Atkins and Reagan, both original secessionists, are in congress and made chairmen of important committees by a war Democrat and speaker of the house. There are many original secessionists in congress and filling prominent offices in the southern States. They were representative men during the war, and they are representative men in peace. So long as the south sent to congress carpetbaggers and scallawags, she had no influence. But so soon as the representative men of the south, whether secessionists, original Union men, Democrats or Old-Line Whigs, entered the halls of congress, the south at once commanded influence and power in the legislation of the country. The representative men in congress from the south are the most conciliatory and loyal men to the country. But for their conservative policy the country would have been precipitated into a civil war on account of the frauds by which the people were swindled out of the man they had elected to the Presidency. At the close of the war the fiat went forth that the northern Democrats who op-Radicals, drunk with power and gorged with stolen wealth, were to be exiled to the Bot- sion of the public will as he could not propsouth had prepared for the original secessionists. Washington, November 7.—The com-missioner-general of the land office, in his annual report, says that the sales of public lands for cash are about 100,000 acres more than the previous year, while the number entered under the homestead and timber-cul-ture laws is 785,123 less. There were certified for railroad purposes 700,791 acres. We yesterday visited the library at Odd-Fellows hall, and were gratified to see the progress making toward putting the young nstitution on a footing of practical utility Our citizens spend a great deal of money for books, but by paying a subscription of five dollars a year they can have access to a reading-room supplied with papers and periodicals, and have ample reading for themselve and families at home. To accomplish al y the storm that howled around him, and this, however, will require some effort from our citizens. Mainly, at present, contributions of books are asked for. There are few persons that have not some books they can well spare. Let all these be put in the lied the Democracy in most of the northern brary, and everybody gets the reading of books somebody now has lying read and done with, by sending to Odd-Fellows hall those of nciliation and sound national sentiments. their own they no longer want. There is here The southern Democrats are sending to cona neutral profit, by which everybody gains, gress their representative men, and the south and nobody loses anything of importance to them to retain. The ladies' reading-room is s rejoiced to see such a representative Demoluxurously furnished, with a comfortable toilet, and with gallant liberality every lady in the city, as visiting it, is invited to call in in and make herself at home every time she goes "up town." The librarian, Mr. M'Clune, is very kind and attentive to visitors; his ability and courtesy ween Huxley and a "positivist" of eminence, are doing much to make the library a success. Visitors generally express themselves pleased with the ceiling ornamentations of the rooms, which is by that accomplished artist Fred. Volkmar, Esquire; the graining, by Mr. William Calhoun, is also very superior, and does credit to the painter. The books are not yet quite ready for circulation, but the delay will not be long, especially if the directory begin by giving books out, at first, once a week. When the shelves are better filled twice a week, and so on until there are books enough for all at all hours. Already the shelves contain many fine works; we noticed Livingston's Travels in Africa, Tyndal's Alps, Prescott's Mexico; Hume's, Lingard's, Thiers's, Macaulay's and Bancroft's histories Washington's writings, Webster, Brougham, Washington Irving and other celebrated names. There are a good many volumes of Blackwood, the Atlantic, the Edinburg, the Westminister, the Quarterly, and of the Westminister, the Quarterly, and of the Saturday magazines and reviews. The British essayists and the British drama, Montaugne, Hazlitt, Coleridge, Moore, Dante, Milton, Shakespeare, Cowper, Campbell, Rogers, Burton's Anatomy of Melancholy, Wayland, Allison, and other standard writers. In books of reference there are chambers' cyclopedia, Appleton's cyclopedia, and annual volumes, gazeteers, dictionaries, lexicons and atlases. In science, the celebrated Correlation of Forces, by Humboldt, Grove, Faraday, etc., and Whe-Humboldt, Grove, Faraday, etc., and Whe-wall's Inductive Sciences, Schoolcraft's Indian Tribes, and the London edition, in quarto, of Don Quixote, with the celebrated Dore illustrations. In theology and religion there are many valuable books, bible dictionaries, com-esting and valuable books of German fiction. philosophy and history. In fiction and poetry the library has room for extension; a full edition of Walter Scott, among others, attracted our attention. Everybody is invited to run up the Odd-Fellows hall stairs, as they pass Court square, and look at the new library. We are sure all who do so will be gratified, for we found our own visit to be a most agreeable occasion, and we thank the directors for the liberality with which they extend their generous hospitality. Let our citizens, espe-cially the ladies and the young men, rally around the Memphis library, and make it a grand and triumphant success. It is an in-stitution badly needed in Memphis; we must not allow it to languish for want of encouragement and aid. Our religious friends, who want to decrease the nightly attendance at drinking saloons, gambling houses and other places of dissipation, should be firm supporters of the library.

of our country have often-especially about election time-been made the subject of laudation; but when too visible in consequence of leanness, they can scarcely be called graceful. The eye delights not to dwell upon angles and ridges in either man or woman. Moreover, extreme emaciation is a sign of imperfect digestion and consequent poverty of the blood. Both these evils are remedied by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which render digestion and assir ation certaintities, in consequence of which the blood acquires richness and the body substance. Thus are the hollow places filled up and the angles rounded off. Through the instrumentality of this peerless aid to digestion and promoter of physical well being, the body rapidly gains in vigor, color returns to the hollow cheek, the appetite improves, nervous symptoms vanish, and a healthful impetus is given to every vital function.
